MAN CHARGED WITH RACIALLY AGGRAVATED ASSAULT

Grainy: A video of the event shows fireworks being thrown

A MAN has been charged with racially aggravated assault following a disturbance at a community festival in South Tottenham on Saturday evening.

Police were called to Markfield Park, in Crowland Road, at 9.10pm, following reports of an "unprovoked attack" against revellers at a free music event – part of World Music Day – by a group of up to 20 people.

Jaroslav Kwidzinski, 22, from Ashted, in Surrey, was arrested and has been charged with racially aggravated common assault, religiously aggravated common assault and common assault after a Jewish man's kippah was pushed from his head.

The Polish national was released on police bail and is due to appear at Highbury Corner Magistrates' Court on Monday, July 14.

Sergeant Paul Kane, of Tottenham police's safer neighbourhood team, praised the "team effort" in diffusing the situation. "We will not tolerate behaviour like this in Haringey," he said.

A 24-year-old Polish man was taken to an east London hospital after being stabbed during the disturbance. He was treated for superficial wounds and has been released.

No one has been arrested in relation to the stabbing and Haringey CID are investigating.

Footage taken at Markfield Park and posted to file-sharing website YouTube later on Saturday shows drunken men throwing bottles, flares and fireworks.

The film, which looks to have been taken on a mobile phone, also shows the group hurling verbal abuse while a single police officer tries to calm the situation.

Journalist and film-maker Oz Katerji, one of "about 150" people, including children, enjoying the event in the park, said there was a "full-scale riot operation" to deal with the "unprovoked assault".

A Metropolitan Police spokesperson added: "A music event was being held at the recreation ground at the time of the stabbing.

"A group of around 20 people, predominantly male and from the Eastern European community, arrived at the location during the course of the event. This was a loose collection of people – not a designated march.

"Inquiries continue into the subsequent disorder, during which fireworks were thrown. We are not aware of any further injuries."

Anyone with information about the incident should call police on 101 or Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

Following the trouble, a peaceful vigil took place at Tottenham Green, opposite Tottenham Town Hall, on Monday evening. It was staged by Unite Against Fascism.

Primary is best read school in the country

A WOOD GREEN primary school is officially the best read school in the country.

Lordship Lane school, in Ellenborough Road, came top out of more than 3,500 schools which took part in this year's Read For My School competition.

The school's 350 pupils worked their way through 10,160 books in 60 days – despite three-quarters of the children having English as their second language.

Pupils were so keen to add to their total that they used the school ICT suite at lunchtime to read books online.

The competition, now in its second year, was launched by learning charity Pearson with charities Booktrust and The Pearson Foundation and support from the Department for Education.

This year the reading challenge ran from January 27 to March 28 and results revealed this week show that across the country more than 200,000 children, aged seven to 13, read nearly 879,000 books.

Sign up for blood doning

TOTTENHAM residents are being urged to take part in a blood-donating session next week.

The session, at St John Vianney Parish Centre, in West Green Road, takes place on Thursday, July 3. Anyone wishing to attend should turn up between 1pm and 3pm and 4.30pm to 7pm. To sign up, visit blood.co.uk or call 0300 123 23 23.

New market sets up stall

A NEW street market will take place in Tottenham Green on Saturday.

Stalls will be at the site in High Road, Tottenham, from 10am to 3pm, selling cheese, cakes, coffee, craft beer and many more goodies, while there will also be live music.

Woman fighting decision to scrap cash fares on buses

A WOOD Green woman is campaigning to keep cash fares on London's buses.

Following a decision by Transport for London, from July 6 people will no longer be able to pay by cash on buses in the capital.

However, that is unfair, says Sophie Wills-Virk, and will discriminate against the poorest and most vulnerable members of society. Now Sophie, who has lived in Wood Green for more than 20 years, has launched a petition against the decision.

"It's going to affect people with mental health problems," she said. "TfL says it is going to train its drivers to recognise vulnerable people, but they are there to drive the buses, so I can't see it happening."

TfL has decided to scrap cash fares as it says just one per cent of all bus passengers pay with cash, compared to 25 per cent in 2000. It also says that getting rid of cash will save time and money.

"The counter-argument is that because only one per cent of people pay by cash, it doesn't take that much time anyway," Sophie added.

Trial date set for sexual assaults accused

A MAN is awaiting trial after being charged with a series of sexual assaults against elderly women earlier this year.

Police appealed for information in March after a pensioner was sexually assaulted at a bus stop in Fortis Green, opposite Springcroft Avenue, on the border of Haringey and Barnet.

As a result of the appeal, three other people came forward, believing they had been assaulted by the same man.

Last week, Jermaine Williams, 32, of Durham Road, Finchley, was charged with four counts of sexual assault, between March 1 and March 27. He has been remanded in custody and is due to appear at Wood Green Crown Court on Wednesday.

Council steps up fight against tax evaders

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

COUNCIL chiefs have pledged to "get tough" on residents who fail to pay their council tax after signing a new deal with a debt collection firm.

The agreement with Agilisys Revenue Collection will see the company target the £26.3million in council tax debts which have previously been non-collectable.

The council says the deal will come at no additional cost to taxpayers as Agilisys will be paid by results and will earn a proportion of the income collected – if none is forthcoming, the firm will not get paid.

Andrew Stafford, the council's cabinet member for finance, said: "We are facing a difficult time financially and it is important that we leave no stone unturned in chasing the debts owed.

"We are always striving to recoup every penny owed to us, so we can use the money to maintain and protect the services our residents rely on.

"They are an established company who will use fair recovery methods and will be closely monitored by the council."

Agilisys will undertake all the recovery work, but the council is not selling the debts. The authority will retain control of the collection process and can stop further action, such as prosecutions, if necessary.

The company, which is used by other London councils, boasts on its website that it can increase income for local authorities by between £2m and £4m a year. The council says it hopes to increase revenue by £500,000 this year as part of the deal.

Ertan Hurer, the council's Conservative spokesman for finance, said: "I would welcome any extra income for the council, but it is important to distinguish between people who fall into arrears because they face hardship and those who simply don't want to pay.

"In cases where there is hardship, we've got to tread carefully. I would prefer not to see enforcement action, but other steps to see where we can help them. I don't know if this firm will distinguish between these cases.

"We need to see how they perform and I will certainly keep a close eye on them."

□ Last month, Bharat Patel, 48, of Colney Hatch Lane, Muswell Hill, who previously lived in Fairfield Road, Edmonton, was jailed for 90 days for refusing to pay his council tax over a number of years. He had racked up a £4,843.98 debt with Enfield Council between January 2007 and September 2011.

Combined deal on the cards for upkeep of CCTV

COUNCIL chiefs are planning to join forces with neighbouring authorities to procure a new contract for the maintenance of the borough's CCTV network.

A £7.4million deal for the maintenance, repair and installation of cameras in Enfield, Newham, Redbridge and Waltham Forest is expected to be signed in the coming months.

Waltham Forest Council is leading the initiative and was expected to approve the contract after the Advertiser went to press. The four-year deal will start in April 2015.

Enfield is taking on the lion's share of the deal with an anticipated spend of £3m. It has more than 300 cameras, by far the most in the four boroughs.

Chris Bond, Enfield's cabinet member for environment and community safety, said Waltham Forest would spend just under £1m and Newham and Redbridge £1.7m.

Mr Bond added: "Our current arrangement runs out in March next year and procuring a new contract with other local authorities makes it cheaper. We don't know yet how much we will save, but we expect to save money long term. We also hope to procure fitting and maintenance of CCTV cameras at new-build estates as part of the contract."

Enfield's CCTV network is monitored at the Public Safety Centre, in Centre Way, on the Claverings Industrial Estate, Edmonton.

Mum renews demand for pregnancy drug probe

'Forgotten thalidomide' was withdrawn as test eight years before it was taken off the market

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A MOTHER who has campaigned for government action on a pregnancy testing drug dubbed "the forgotten thalidomide" has stepped up her calls for an independent public inquiry.

Chris Gooch, 65, of Carnarvon Avenue, Enfield, was given the hormone pill Primodos by her doctor in June 1970 believing that it was a straightforward pregnancy test.

When her daughter Emma arrived early in 1971, she was born with some of her fingers and toes only partially developed.

Gradually, Ms Gooch began to make the connection between the pill she was given when she was pregnant and her daughter's disability.

And last week she learned that the drug had been officially withdrawn as a pregnancy test in 1970 – the same year she had been given it.

According to a spokeswoman for Bayer (the company that now owns original manufacturer Schering) in 1970, manufacturers agreed with the authorities to stop recommending Primodos as a means of testing for pregnancy.

However, the drug continued to be licensed for use as a treatment for secondary amenorrhoea – a condition where menstruation stops in adult women.

The spokeswoman added that "any use of Primodos other than for the treatment of amenorrhoea not due to pregnancy would have been 'off-label', meaning it was not sanctioned for any other purpose by the manufacturers.

Ms Gooch told the Advertiser: "It is disgusting. The drug companies say there is no clinical evidence that the drug caused deformities, but there is a huge amount of circumstantial evidence that it did."

Although the manufacturers agreed to stop recommending it as a pregnancy testing drug in 1970, it was not until 1975 that the Committee on Safety of Medicines, an independent advisory body to the Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency, concluded that there was "little justification" for the continued use of this type of pregnancy tests when alternative methods were available.

It was taken off the market in 1978.

Ms Gooch now wants answers about why it took eight years for the drug to be dropped.

"This is why we need an independent public inquiry," she said.

"The government clearly knew there were problems and they had a duty to make this issue public as soon as they knew that."

But Ms Gooch has praised Nick de Bois, her MP for Enfield North, for his work as vice-chairman of the newly-established All-Party Parliamentary Group on Primodos.

"He told me at the first meeting 18 MPs turned up – apparently that's practically unheard of," she added.

"The fact that questions are finally being asked of government is a huge opportunity for us to finally get to the truth."

A spokeswoman for Bayer said: "Since the discontinuation of the legal action in 1982, no new scientific knowledge has been produced which would call into question the validity of the previous assessment of there being no link between the use of Primodos and the occurrence of such congenital abnormalities."

Fighting on: Chris Gooch, whose daughter Emma, right, was born in 1971 with some fingers and toes only partially developed

MP quits as parliamentary aide to concentrate on re-election fight

ENFIELD Southgate MP David Burrowes has stepped down as a ministerial aide to focus on defending his seat in next year's general election.

With 11 months to go to polling day, Mr Burrowes announced his resignation in a letter to Prime Minister David Cameron, saying he wanted "to focus my attention in the remaining time of this parliament on what is in the best interests of my constituents, and our party".

He had been parliamentary private secretary to Owen Paterson, Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, for two years.

Previously, he had been a PPS to Oliver Letwin, Minister of State at the Cabinet Office, on the issue of drug and alcohol policy and had retained an advisory role on these matters when he started working for Mr Paterson.

Mr Burrowes told the Advertiser: "I resigned to be able to campaign for a new Conservative government and issues that matter in the constituency, such as the recent knife crime amendment which I worked with Nick de Bois on.

"As a ministerial aide, you are bound by collective responsibility. There is legislation coming up, such as the Recall Bill, which allows constituents to sack MPs, where I will not be agreeing with the coalition government."

Asked if his resignation was partly due to the last month's local election results, which saw Labour unexpectedly win a seat in the Southgate Green ward, he said: "I have never taken the Enfield Southgate seat for granted and there will be a battle ahead. I think the biggest message coming out of the local election results is those who weren't bothered to vote.

"That must mean we must go out there and engage people more. There are local issues I want to campaign on and speak out about and this will give me more time to do that," added Mr Burrowes, who has been elected to the Public Accounts Committee, which holds the government to account over the use of taxpayers' money.

Bambos Charalambous, Labour's prospective parliamentary candidate for Enfield Southgate, said Mr Burrowes' resignation showed he was "rattled" by the local election results.

"On the doorstep, people are telling me they want a change of government and they are coming back to Labour," he added.

Borough to regain Fairtrade mantle

By Kim Inam

kim.inam@nlhnews.co.uk

CABINET members are expected to recommend tonight that Enfield Council re-registers as a Fairtrade borough.

After securing accreditation in September 2008 and establishing a steering group, the registration has lapsed.

The Fairtrade Foundation has granted the authority a period of grace for accreditation since 2012, but the council must now re-register before an August 31 deadline.

Fairtrade ensures that farmers providing food stuffs to the UK are paid a fair wage and have decent working conditions.

In papers to go before cabinet members this evening, it is will be revealed that reaccreditation will have little direct cost to the authority, although it will have to switch to Fairtrade tea and coffee, instead of the Rainforest Alliance hot drinks currently offered.

The authority also has to have a Fairtrade flagship employer – and it has already selected Christian Action Housing, which will also be expected to supply Fairtrade products to its employees and guests.

Mark Hayes, chief executive of the housing association, said: "We will be working together with the council to support and promote the Fairtrade campaign."

"We share the same business values, seeking to ensure that profits are distributed fairly and that workers receive a fair reward for their labour."

"As a local workplace that uses Fairtrade products for its staff, our priority is to promote Fairtrade to our staff, clients and contactors

FAIRTRADE FOUNDATION

Fair's fair: Enfield Council is expected to re-register as a Fairtrade borough tonight explaining how they can make simple changes to support Fairtrade.

"Christian Action strongly believes in the principles of Fairtrade and we are committed to promote these."

The only cost to the council is expected to come from promoting and publicising the authority's Fairtrade accreditation and arranging events for the annual Fairtrade fortnight – the next staging of which is expected to take place between February 23 and March 8 next year.

Andrew Stafford, cabinet member for finance, said: "Fairtrade is a global initiative rather than just the rainforest – it fits in with our cleaning products not being tested on animals. It all fits in with globalisation and everybody treating each other well."

"There's little cost in doing it and it's like ethical investment in pension funds. It's the same sort of argument, making sure the money is going to the people you want it to go to."

Tory chief slams 'jobs for the boys'

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

AN opposition councillor has reiterated claims the authority's Labour administration has "castrated democracy" to create "jobs for the boys" with its overhaul of democratic services.

Ertan Hurer, Conservative spokesman for finance, described the creation of three new associate cabinet member positions as "blatant party political appointments".

The £300,600 bill for allowances for councillors with special responsibilities will remain the same this year as last.

But democratic services such as area forums have been axed and scrutiny committees have been merged to pay for the new posts, said Mr Hurer, pictured.

The cost for the new roles – which are meant to enhance engagement with residents and improve oversight of big infrastructure projects – under the umbrellas of Enfield West, Enfield North and Enfield South East, is £22,824.

But the Tories say they have been created for party political purposes as they align with parliamentary constituencies.

Mr Hurer told the Advertiser: "They are using taxpayers' money for political appointments. We are now effectively paying councillors to shadow MPs in their constituencies.

"The councillor who is shadowing David Burrowes MP in the west of the borough is the prospective parliamentary candidate for Labour in Enfield Southgate, Bambos Charalambous. It is jobs for the boys."

However, Mr Charalambous denied this, saying: "The new position will be able to cut across projects which involve people with different responsibilities, such as mini-Holland or Crossrail.

"By having one person overseeing these kinds of infrastructure projects, we will have a more effective way of delivering services.

"Before, that was the combined duty of, say, five members, but this is now merged into one. This is a better way of working."

But Mr Hurer questioned this logic, saying: "You have a cabinet meeting for that sort of oversight, why do we need a councillor in between? This is so blatantly political, it is ridiculous."

Two weeks ago councillors voted in a raft of cost-saving measures which will see individual scrutiny committees scrapped in favour of a single overarching overview and scrutiny committee, which will have specific "work streams" to examine crime and disorder and health and well-being.

The council also voted to get rid of area forums and replace them with meetings organised by ward councillors, but without involvement from council officers.

Town centre dispersal zone renewed

A DISPERSAL zone around Enfield Town has been renewed after residents complained about the behaviour of young people hanging around in the streets.

Enfield Council and the police have extended the zone until December 8 after residents highlighted the problem of youngsters gathering around Chase Green and the town centre, drinking, harassing members of the public and committing vandalism and theft.

A dispersal zone gives police officers and PCSOs the power to move on people in the area and ban them from returning for 48 hours, while under-16s can be forcibly returned to their parents or carers.

The council has pledged to install mobile CCTV cameras in the area to identify troublemakers and as well as the safer neighbourhood team, the safer parks team will patrol the area. Youth workers and the mobile youth centre will also be visiting the area to offer advice to young people and alternatives to hanging around the streets.

Cabinet member for environment Chris Bond said: "Enfield Council takes the safety and security of our residents extremely seriously and we aren't going to tolerate a group of people hanging around our town centres causing havoc and scaring honest, law-abiding members of society.

"We've acted promptly to address residents' concerns and we'll be closely monitoring the situation to make sure that we get this sorted out as quickly as possible."

Lecturers protest at college job cuts

By Daniel O'Brien

daniel.obrien@nlhnews.co.uk

LECTURERS at Barnet and Southgate College staged a series of demonstrations outside three campuses yesterday in protest at proposed job cuts.

Members of the University and College Union unanimously backed a vote of no confidence last Thursday in the college's principal David Byrne and his senior leadership team after plans were confirmed to make academic and support staff compulsorily redundant as they try to slash £5million from its budget.

UCU members have warned that the job losses, which it claims will equate to 30 full-time equivalent posts, will lead to successful courses being withdrawn, shorter course hours, bigger classes and an increase in workload for the remaining staff.

The union says more than 20 full-time equivalent posts, in subjects including art and design, computing and catering, are still at risk of redundancy. Nearly 15 support staff and two management positions are also under threat.

Barnet and Southgate College, which has a campus in High Street, Southgate, says that budget cuts are necessary due to reductions in government funding, but that fewer than ten teaching posts are at risk.

A consultation was launched six weeks ago, but union members say the final plans, which were revealed last Monday, have barely been altered.

A branch spokesman said: "We don't think that the senior managers are listening. We went through the statutory consultation where we had meetings around the college and hundreds of suggestions were made, but the proposals are almost identical."

"The quality of the educational experience for the students is going to be reduced. We accept there are funding cuts, but there are ways and means of delivering them."

A college spokeswoman said: "We, like all other further education colleges, are facing funding cuts and due to these reductions, we have needed to make changes. The college has taken on board comments from staff potentially affected and the recognised trade unions which has reduced the effects of redundancies through voluntary redundancies and other amendments to the original proposal.

"Union claims about the total number of job losses are unfortunate and very misleading. The actual figure for teaching posts lost, after the consultation process, is less than ten. The college has had to reduce its expenditure by around £5m and of this figure 30 per cent is being found from staffing."

Columnist

Enfield Green Party

AND Enfield Green Party would like to thank the Advertiser for giving us this occasional column in recognition of becoming Enfield's third political party.

I plan to use it to demonstrate that we are much more than a one-issue party.

We also have a strong stance on social justice, occupying the ground the national Labour Party has so cravenly vacated – although I absolve the local Labour group, most of whom are still true to their roots.

I have to start, though, with the electoral system.

In recent years, elections have been introduced for the European Parliament, London Assembly, Scottish Parliament and Welsh Assembly.

Each one has a form of proportional representation, yet for Westminster and for local councils we are stuck with the first-past-the-post system.

Someone has done an analysis of how many council seats the Greens would have got in London if last month's elections had been completely proportional – 125, four of them in Enfield.

In reality, we got four all told, none of them in Enfield.

The analysis assumes that a new system would not alter voting patterns – as, of course, it would.

All too many people prefer to vote for the major party they detest least to keep the other lot out, a strategy I have never understood: if you hate 'em both, vote for something different.

A last word on the Labour bonfire of the scrutiny panels.

It goes against the grain, but I have to agree with Conservative group leader Terry Neville that it is undemocratic and an abuse of power and process.

Submit your works of art for 'Beautiful Enfield' competition

THE Dugdale Centre Gallery will be hosting an art competition and exhibition celebrating "Beautiful Enfield" this summer and is inviting local artists to submit work.

The venue in Enfield Town is a thriving arts and business centre and houses a modern, spacious exhibition space used by local artists to exhibit and sell their work.

The "Beautiful Enfield" competition is open to all artists living in the borough and the winner will receive a prize comprising art materials and equipment.

Entry forms are now available to pick up from the Dugdale Centre, in London Road, or can be obtained via email or hard copy by contacting Hayley Byfield on 020 8379 8354 or at Hayley.byfield@enfield.gov.uk

Drop-off day for works will be Saturday, July 5, from 10am to 4pm, judging and selection will take place the following day and the exhibition will run from July 7 until August 1.

A fee of £5 per entry will be payable on submission and artists may submit up to two pieces of work.

There will be no hanging fee, but 15 per cent commission will be charged on all sales.

Entries must be original works of art in any medium (photographs will not be admitted) that embrace the theme of "Beautiful Enfield".

The maximum dimensions for pictures will be 16in by 22in, including frame. There will also be a limited space for sculpture and ceramics, which will be displayed in glass cases.

The Dugdale Centre has public liability insurance, but artists will need to provide their own insurance for individual art works. The centre also has its own security guard and the environment is well staffed and secure.

Trying to trace pilot's details

I HAVE been researching a collision involving two Hawker Typhoon aircraft over south-eastern Kent in July 1944.

It is with a view to producing a small booklet about the crash and other World War II events that happened around Wootton, Kent.

One pilot, a Canadian, was killed in his aircraft, but the other pilot, who was Flight Sergeant Arthur R Hack, of Primrose Avenue, Enfield, managed to bale out, according to local testimony, but died of his injuries later.

While the Canadian archives are easily accessible, there is an embargo on such records in British archives until 2045. Therefore, I am seeking any information about F/Sgt Hack through your readership.

His parents were Sarah and Cornelius Hack, of Primrose Avenue, and he was born in 1923.

If anyone is able to help in any way, I would be very grateful if you would get in touch.

Colin Welch
Selsted, Kent

● If anyone can help Mr Welch, please get in touch with the Advertiser via the addresses on this page and we will forward your messages.

This isn't just a flight of fancy

MORE and more people from different parts of London have been in touch with me to complain about being disturbed by aircraft noise.

Commonsense tells us that this situation will only get worse if Heathrow or City Airport are allowed to keep expanding.

Heathrow alone is the most noise-polluting airport in Europe, affecting the lives of more than 750,000 residents.

The government has set up the Davis Commission to look at the future of aviation.

But I am extremely worried that it is not taking the problems of noise pollution seriously enough.

Furthermore, when we add in the problems of air pollution and climate change emissions, it becomes clear that the only sensible way forward is to try and reduce the number of flights, rather than increase them.

Some of the UK's leading companies have cut their business flights by more than a third and made much greater use of video-conferencing.

We do not need to simply accept further airport expansion as somehow inevitable.

Give your suggestions on how travel tickets should be priced

WE have a once-in-a-generation opportunity to have a real say on how our travel tickets are priced in London.

Mayor of London Boris Johnson has announced that he will instruct Transport for London to examine how to encourage walking and cycling as part of the flexible ticketing package to be introduced in 2015.

The announcement comes in response to the report, Commuter Payback, which looked at ways to get more Londoners travelling to work on bike or foot.

The report estimates that under a system of commuter rebates, a zones 1-3 season ticket holder, who chooses to walk or cycle just once a week, could receive a refund of £207 upon expiry of their Travelcard.

And anyone holding a zones 1-6 annual Travelcard, working remotely or from home one day a week, could receive a £310.50 rebate.

I urge everyone in Enfield – whether you are a receptionist, cleaner or banker, an employee, manager or business owner – to have your say in the current 90-day consultation for Londoners.

To submit your responses online, visit glacconservatives.co.uk/flexible-commuting

Behind the scheme: Stephanie Benbow, headteacher of St Mary's, is one of the educationalists who conceived the free school plan

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

EDUCATION chiefs have given the go-ahead for a free school in Cheshunt to open its doors next year.

St Mary's Church of England Primary School is aiming to start with 60 reception pupils in September 2015 at a brand new building in Lieutenant Ellis Way – on the site of the existing St Mary's CofE High School.

A group of educationalists including Stephanie Benbow, headteacher of St Mary's, came up with the idea last year of setting up a free school to address the growing demand for primary places in the area.

Ms Benbow stressed that the bid, which was lodged with the Department for Education in January, was not made by the high school.

She told the Advertiser: "We are all working in education and work closely with primary schools in the area, and it became obvious that there is a shortage of places.

"We have a big site here at the high school and having consulted with parents we decided to go ahead."

The school will initially have two forms of entry – but Ms Benbow said this could rise to three, depending on demand.

The school will ultimately provide 420 places for four to 11-year-olds from all faiths and none.

Ms Benbow added: "We have a beautiful site with all the infrastructure in place and we believe that providing a new school with a Christian ethos is something that the local community will respond to positively."

A headteacher will be appointed later this year and discussions with the Education Funding Agency about the new building are due to start next month.

In February, the Department for Education approved an application by Meridian Angel Primary School, which will be open its doors in temporary classrooms in Dysons Road, Edmonton, in September.

The school is aiming to find a permanent home at the Meridian Water development in Edmonton next year.

And ARK Schools, which runs the ARK John Keats Academy, in Bell Lane, Enfield Highway, is aiming to open the ARK North Enfield Academy in 2016.

It has not yet identified a suitable site.

It will be an all-through free school, which will consist of a three-form entry primary and a six-form entry secondary and is being developed in partnership with the College of Haringey, Enfield and North East London.

Bee spells success for Andriana

Final fling: Andriana Chacholiades is swotting up on 200 Spanish words

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A STELLAR language pupil has made it through to the final of a national spelling bee – and this particular competition forces students to spell words in a foreign language.

Andriana Chacholiades, a Year 7 pupil at Highlands School, in Worlds End Lane, Winchmore Hill, will be taking to the stage in Angela Ruskin University in Cambridgeshire on July 4 as a finalist in the Routes into Languages spelling bee.

Having aced the regional heats, during which the 11-year-old saw off competition from all of London, she will now face rivals from regions across England – and she just has to perfectly memorise 200 Spanish words before she can be crowned Queen Bee.

"I just happen to be fast," said the 11-year-old, explaining her success at spelling under the pressure of a countdown clock. "And I practise a bit," she added modestly.

And although excited at the prospect of displaying her vocabulary prowess on stage, she admits the thought is a little bit daunting.

"I try not to think about all the people watching, but I am quite a bit nervous about the big finals," she said.

The young linguist also revealed that the thrill of competition has given her a new passion for the language.

"I really started enjoying Spanish after I started doing the spelling bees," she added. "I would like to carry on with Spanish until my GCSEs."

Her Spanish teacher Carmen Edmett thinks her "commitment and dedication" is the secret to Andriana's success.

"She has come to every practice and revision class and, of course, her parents are hugely supportive as well, which helps," she said.

Keeping up the pressure: Kate Anolue

Rally for abducted Nigerian schoolgirls

A FORMER mayor of Enfield is battling to keep the plight of hundreds of girls who were abducted from their school in Nigeria in the public's minds.

Kate Anolue, who was Enfield's first citizen during 2012/13, hails from Nigeria.

Along with others, she has been campaigning to maintain pressure on the international community to do more to help free more than 200 girls from the Islamic militants who kidnapped them from their school in the north of the country in April.

On Saturday, Mrs Anolue was one of the driving forces behind a protest in Enfield Town – the group's second protest on the issue following a march through Edmonton in May.

She said: "We want to keep people talking about this. We handed out more than 400 leaflets to people and we want to keep this in the public eye."

"It has dropped off the news agenda a little recently because of what is happening in Iraq – but we still need people to be aware."

Mrs Anolue told the Advertiser that many in Nigeria fear some of the girls have already been trafficked out of the country.

"Some have been trafficked, some may have been murdered, some of them will be pregnant," she said.

"We need to think of the families of these girls – everybody should put themselves in that situation. These families will be traumatised and need support."

Missing since June 13: Hygerda Hoxhaj

Family desperate for news about missing teenager

POLICE are appealing for information on the whereabouts of a teenage girl who has gone missing from her home in Edmonton.

Hygerda Hoxhaj, 17, was last seen by her family on June 13 at the address in Monmouth Road.

The teenager's family are extremely concerned for her welfare and desperate to hear from her.

Hygerda is of Albanian origin, has straight blonde hair, blue and green eyes and is of medium build.

She may be carrying some bags – possibly a duffel bag.

Anyone who has seen her or has any information concerning her whereabouts is being urged to contact the Enfield Missing Persons' Unit on or call Missing People on 116 000.

Charlotte is found

POLICE have announced that a missing 15-year-old girl has been found.

We reported last week that Charlotte Dempsey-Halliday, of Havering, east London, had been in the Enfield area before she went missing earlier this month.

Police said on Friday that the teenager had been found.

Three dogs rescued

THREE pet dogs were rescued from a fire at a maisonette on Wednesday morning last week.

The London Fire Brigade was called to the property in Great Cambridge Road at 11.20am.

Two fire engines attended with ten firefighters from Enfield and Edmonton stations.

No one was inside the maisonette at the time. The three dogs were saved unhurt.

The fire was brought under control by 11.50am and the cause of the blaze is being investigated.

Wheely good fun

HUNDREDS of youngsters awoke their inner Sir Bradley Wiggins on Friday at a cycling event in Enfield Town Park.

With a nod to the world's leading annual cycling race, the Tour de France, won by Sir Bradley in 2012, children from eight primary schools took part in the Tour de Enfield, a borough-wide festival organised by Enfield Council.

The children rode around on scooters, took part in balancing activities, a slalom and a bike race and received road safety tips along the way. The event in Enfield Town Park was part of a tour that started in May and continues until July 17 in eight of the borough's parks.

Chris Bond, cabinet member for environment, said, "Children are getting great exercise, learning to cycle and understanding road safety. For Enfield, this is the age of the bike and the Tour de Enfield is a big part of it as new generations gain the confidence and skill to cycle and enjoy our open spaces."

Teenager lands role in prime-time BBC drama

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

TV star: Armin Karimaghahi is filming the final series of BBC drama Waterloo Road

AN Edmonton teenager will soon have his name in lights after landing a role in a prime-time BBC soap opera.

Armin Karimaghahi, 18, of Church Lane, Edmonton, is set to star in BBC 1 drama Waterloo Road for its final series, which will be screened in 2015.

The teenager wowed programme bosses after his drama tutor at City and Islington College, in Holloway Road, Islington, gave him a gentle shove towards auditioning for the role in Glasgow.

And now Armin is juggling his studies with filming in Scotland.

He told the Advertiser: "I am really enjoying the experience so far in Glasgow as I love travelling and being in new places."

"It is amazing to be part of such a well-known series and I cannot wait for it to be aired next year."

But his new-found fame and fortune has not always been on Armin's agenda as he initially wanted to study art and design at the college.

However, after unexpected A-level results prompted some soul-searching, he decided to return to his youthful love of the stage.

He said: "If I am being honest, I did not set out to be an actor from a young age.

"I played Oliver Twist at school and a part in a Lord of the Flies production, and I knew I had natural ability, but I had always focused on art and design."

"I took the course at City and Islington College and my passion for acting just grew and grew."

"My teachers are very inspiring and calm, and provide the whole package to pursue a career in the industry."

Tim Chaundy, Armin's drama tutor, said: "We are very proud of him and what he has already achieved. Since starting the course he has shown commitment and passion to go the extra mile."

"He has been a pleasure to teach and work with and we hope his example can inspire other students considering taking this course."

As for future plans, Armin is determined to forge a career for himself as a serious actor.

"I want to be a versatile actor and to gain experience playing a wide range of roles," he said.

"When it comes to acting, I believe in naturalism and I am highly influenced and inspired by the work of Constantin Stanislavski."

"I hope to be part of a big Iranian film soon and I am excited about the opportunities the future holds."

Laughter doesn't stop

By Kim Inam

kim.inam@nlhnews.co.uk

IF you're in need of a good laugh, look no further as the Principal Theatre Company has done it again with its 1970s-inspired interpretation of Shakespeare's The Merry Wives Of Windsor.

I'm not ashamed to say that I could hear my roars of laughter echoing back to me from the line of trees behind the stage at Capel Manor on Friday evening as the company's artistic director Paul Gladwin strutted – and thrust – his stuff as Sir John Falstaff.

Transformed into a fading celebrity Gladwin wins over the audience, while Falstaff unsuccessfully woos the wives of Windsor, with his character's self-deprecating humour, coupled with his dogged determination to bed Mistress Ford, handled with consistent comic timing, including belching on cue.

Gladwin's Falstaff was only a success thanks to his interactions with Mistress Margaret Page (Roseanna Morris) and Mistress Alice Ford (Emily Bairstow).

Their expressions and body language provided the perfect antidote to the over-the-top overtures from Falstaff – and the sarcasm etched on Bairstow's face and Morris' play acting for the pair's deceptive plot were a perfect complement to their on-stage relationships.

When director Christopher Geelan told the Advertiser earlier this month that every character is a "gem to comedy", he was not wrong.

Witness the furious, while hilarious, French Dr Caius (Denis Michallet) warming up for his "battle" with Welshman Sir Hugh Evans (Russell Wootton) while singing Kung Fu Fighting, to Zoe Littleton's Simple running around after Falstaff with a washing-up brush, complete with look of longing and a high-pitched squeak.

There were some well-placed modern references within the staging, with Dr Caius and Sir Hugh using paper, scissors, stone to solve their dispute and Falstaff facing his ultimate humiliation to the strains of Queen's Bohemian Rhapsody.

● The Merry Wives Of Windsor is at Capel Manor, in Bullsmoor Lane, Enfield, until Sunday, then at Old Ashmolean Rugby Club, in The Bourne, Southgate, from July 9 to 12 and at Coram's Fields, in Bloomsbury, central London, from July 17 to August 2. To buy tickets, call the box office on 020 8807 6680 or visit www.millfieldartscentre.co.uk

Win a pair of tickets to stand-up comedy evening

COMEDIANS Jo Brand, Jason Manford, Stewart Lee and Marcus Brigstocke are all appearing on the same bill next month to Stand Up Against Austerity.

And we are offering two readers the chance to win a pair of tickets for the gig.

Shappi Khorsandi, Mark Steel, Robin Ince, Francesca Martinez, Jeremy Hardy, Kate Smurthwaite and Jen Brister will also take to the Hammersmith Apollo stage, in Caroline Street, at 8pm on July 7.

They are supporting the People's Assembly – a coalition opposing cuts to public services and backed by trade unions including Unite and the National Union of Teachers.

Jo Brand, who was once a nurse, said: "The government says, 'The NHS is safe in our hands'. It seems to me more like the NHS safe is in their hands as they continue to plunder and break up the service."

Tickets costing £20-£30 are available from www.eventimapollo.com/events/detail/stand-up-againstausterity

However, to be in with the chance of winning a pair of tickets, just answer the following question:

Which public service did comedian Jo Brand previously work for?

Send your answer, as well as your name, address and a daytime telephone number, to Austerity Gig, North London & Herts Newspapers, 187 Baker Street, Enfield, EN1 3JT.

Alternatively, email your answer and full contact details to competitions@nlhnews.co.uk with "austerity gig" in the subject line.

Entries close at noon on Wednesday, July 2, 2014, and usual NLH Newspapers competition rules apply.

Boost for fathers at family day full of fun and games

By Kim Inam

kim.inam@nlhnews.co.uk

FATHERS took centre stage at a family fun day in Enfield Lock last week.

The Prince of Wales Children's Centre, in Salisbury Road, hosted the Let's Celebrate Fatherhood Day, which was organised by Enfield-based organisation Father 2 Father.

The fun day on Sunday, June 15, included gladiator fighting, bungee jumping and traditional sack races as well as egg and spoon relays.

Courtney Brown, the founder of Father 2 Father, set up the non-profit organisation to promote fatherhood and families following the August 2011 riots.

He said: "It's all about positive role modelling, getting fathers more engaged in children's lives, education and health issues and spending quality time together."

The day also included live performances from singers and musicians, as well as health advisers from Cancer Research providing helpful tips for men.

"We had an interactive workshops session, which was meant to last 15 minutes but went on for more than an hour," Courtney said.

"It was a supportive workshop. We are all going through the same thing and we were advising each other on the ways to deal with the needs of day-to-day life."

The event was attended by Enfield North MP Nick de Bois, who said: "This is the beginning of something we should treasure, something that is important to Enfield."

The organisation, which was launched last year at the Craig Park Unity Hub, in Edmonton, will hold a second workshop for dads in November and another family celebration event for Christmas.

Hunt for duo after attack on man, 62

POLICE are appealing for information after a man was attacked at a bus stop in Winchmore Hill.

The 62-year-old victim was assaulted near the Tesco Express Esso petrol station, in Green Lanes, at 12.30pm on Friday, June 6.

Two men jumped out at him before kicking and punching him.

Although the victim was able to fight them off and was unharmed, he was shaken by the experience.

Officers believe the motive for the attack was robbery as one of the attackers reached into the man's coat pocket.

The two suspects ran into Elm Park Road after the attack.

They are described as black and aged under 21 years old, and both were wearing dark clothing.

Any witnesses or anyone with information is asked to call police on 101 or, to remain anonymous, ring Crimestoppers on 0800 555 111.

Kids urged: turn up and tune in – don't drop out

By Kim Inam

kim.inam@nlhnews.co.uk

A PLAY about school dropouts and their teachers working to turn their lives around is the latest instalment from Supakids.

Put A Sock In It makes its debut at Millfield Theatre on Sunday, telling the tale of a group of youngsters who have faced violence, witnessed deaths and been kicked out of mainstream schooling to a pupil referral unit.

Founder of Supakids Sophia Roomes told the Advertiser: "There are so many children who are dropping out of school, from different cultures.

"In the play the pupils go to a positive school where the negatives are changed into positives – they end up graduating.

"They don't put pen to paper – they do workshops and they learn it's not cool to have knives, it's not cool to bully, it's cool to think positive and to focus on their dreams. It's aimed at everyone – even the teachers have issues around fears in the play."

Supakids, based in Tottenham, was established in 2008 after a string of youth murders in the area. The school is aimed at children aged from seven to 18.

"I've had children who were bullied in school and who were the bullies," said

Brought to book: The play tells of kids who thrive in a pupil referral unit Sophia. "I've helped build confidence and self-esteem and provided them with discipline through drama.

"After the 2011 riots the whole school had a discussion – we have a lot of discussion times – they were appalled and disturbed by it all."

The school has been recognised by the Prime Minister and the Mayor of London for achievements in the north London community.

"My aim was to produce shows promoting a message of love, hope and positivity," added Sophia.

"If we send a positive message out there, then young people will try and change. The best way to do that is through theatre."

The show starts at 7pm at the theatre in Silver Street, Edmonton.

Tickets cost £13 for adults and £8 for children aged 15 and under, and are available from the box office on 020 8807 6680 or via www.millfieldtheatre.co.uk

Shops supporter hits out at cash mob cyclists

A CHAMPION of the “shop-local” movement has slammed a bridge-building exercise by cyclists planning a cash mob next month.

The event, organised by the Enfield Cycling Campaign, is scheduled for Saturday, July 5, as part of the Palmers Green Festival and will see cyclists descend on shops in Green Lanes to indulge in some group retail therapy.

Adrian Lachlan, the borough co-ordinator for the London Cycling Campaign, says the idea has stemmed from a desire to show traders that making the area cycle friendly through the mini-Holland scheme will not see businesses damaged by a loss of car parking space – after two independent candidates in the council elections campaigned against proposals to replace some on-street parking with cycle lanes.

However, Helen Osman, who founded the community forum N21 Online and stood as an independent candidate in the Winchmore Hill ward in the elections last month, has attacked the idea.

“Men buy, women shop,” she told the Advertiser. “Do they normally shop in Palmers Green, or are they just doing this for effect?”

“Do they think that people on bikes are going to make up for the potential loss of business from people in cars?”

Mrs Osman believes the idea is flawed as she says it is mostly men who will be in the cycling cash mob whereas it is mostly women who do the family shopping.

“Women are under-represented in cycling,” she said. “If you think of the people in this group, they are probably male and young and do a lot of their shopping in convenience stores or online.”

Responding to Mrs Osman’s criticisms, Mr Lachlan said that he did not fully understand her objections.

He said: “The cycle cash mob is a way of local residents showing support for Palmers Green shops and I do not understand why people are negative about it.

“We are trying to show that we are not the enemy – we are not a group of people who do not shop and just want cycle paths for ourselves.

“As cyclists we can help and support local businesses as much as people in cars.”

The cash mob will meet at the corner of Compton Road and Green Lanes in Winchmore Hill at noon and each person will be encouraged to spend a minimum of £10 in the shops along Green Lanes.

Action station as artwork is unveiled on railway bridge

By Koos Couvee

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

MORE than 500 years after Sir Hugh Myddelton’s efforts saw the New River bring fresh water to this part of London, the river and its engineer are being represented in street art which was unveiled at Bowes Park railway station last week.

As a result of a collaboration between train operator First Capital Connect, creative arts company On The Level Productions and Year 4 pupils at Bounds Green School and Children’s Centre, in Bounds Green Road, four new artworks were installed on the footbridge leading to the station on Tuesday.

Sir Hugh is remembered as the driving force behind the construction of the New River, an ambitious engineering project to bring clean water from the River Lea, through Enfield, Palmers Green and Wood Green, and all the way to Finsbury Park. The river opened in 1613.

The other works feature the New River, Myddelton Road market and the community gardens located a stone’s throw away from the station in Myddelton Road – the street which is named after the engineer, although it is spelt differently.

In April, On The Level Productions, which works on art projects in schools and youth clubs across the capital, visited Bounds Green to hold a workshop during which pupils came up with ideas for the art that was unveiled on the footbridge.

Andres Mercader, its co-founder, said: “We worked with the children on some miniature designs and we took elements of their work and ideas as the basis for the artworks that we eventually produced.

“All the ideas were based on what the children liked about the local community and the history of Bowes Park and Bounds Green.

On display: The artworks hanging from the footbridge at Bowes Park station

“The works try to embody the community spirit that is present here.”

Androulla Kyriacou, Year 4 class teacher and arts co-ordinator at the school, added: “The children really put their efforts into the project and they absolutely loved it.

“It was a good experience for them, particularly because they were working together with the artists, and they loved the works.”

Myddelton Road market, a street market which is held every three months, is taking place this Saturday and Sunday between 10am and 4pm.

Writer J Lindo

'Society needs my debut novel'

By Jack Wilkinson

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

A BOOK claiming to be essential reading for young women in London has been released by Edmonton-based debut author J Lindo.

The novel, entitled Cleo, is a fictional story which portrays the troubles faced by a young mixed-race girl growing up in the capital and aims to raise awareness for girls going through similar experiences in the real world.

The story, which has been published through online retailers, deals with hard-hitting issues including prostitution, rape, murder and domestic violence.

The 28-year-old author, of Haselbury Road, said: "I feel really good that I have done something positive that could help people.

"I truly believe this book is needed in today's society. This book is for every woman who has gone through turbulent times in their lives."

The plot revolves around an imprisoned narrator as she writes a book designed to prevent girls from experiencing what she has by illustrating the events that led to her incarceration.

The book within a book uses detailed flashbacks as Cleo, the protagonist, tries to come to terms with life within the prison system.

In addition, the story looks to highlight the positives of rehabilitation for prisoners.

Cleo was conceived as a play in 2006 while J Lindo was at college and made the transition from the stage to novel following the positive reception the play received.

Publishers Austin Macauley have requested that the story be published in hardback format – but at present this option remains financially unavailable to the author.

J Lindo is looking to add to his first publication later this year with the launch of a second novel tackling the issues surrounding gang culture in the UK.

Cleo, priced at £6.99, is available online in 51 countries via iBooks, Kindle, Barnes and Noble Sony e-books and major retailers.

Extend Your Lease

(An investment, not a cost)

Breathe a new "lease" of life into your property

- Are you a flat owner?
- Do you know how long is left on your lease?
- Flats fall in value as leases get shorter
- This can make your flat difficult to sell
- And remortgaging can be a problem
- BUT you have the right to extend your lease
- We can get your lease extended by 90 years
- And eliminate your ground rent
- You may even be able to buy your freehold!

In print... ...or Online

We'll give you the best of both worlds...every week, all week!

In this rapidly moving technological age people are finding new ways to advertise, especially online via the internet. But contrary to what online sites are saying and common assumptions, print advertising is not dead. There are still benefits and disadvantages to both methods and the best way to succeed is to find a vehicle that covers both bases - and that's where we come in!

The Benefits of print advertising:

1. Print adverts last longer and will be seen often.
2. They will be seen by a large number of people and have the ability to hit a specific audience.
3. There is a more creative potential with print advertising.
4. There is a positive perception of newspaper advertising - it will encourage people to think the client is serious.

The Benefits of online advertising:

1. The advert content can be easily updated.
2. It's online 24/7, 12 months a year, all round the world.
3. A massive audience, with all ages now online.
4. Very quick response - you can be receiving candidates hours after posting your advert.

The Advertiser series of newspapers is distributed every week and the latest editions can be found on our website at Advertisements offering credit or hire facilities must conform to the Consumer Credit (Advertisements) Regulations 1980.

2. Classified Advertisers offering goods or service of a business, commercial or trade nature will, at the discretion of the Publishers, be deemed 'Trade Advertisers', and as such, must include their names in advertisements. A telephone number is an optional addition to these requirements and not an alternative.

To comply with the Business Advertisements (Disclosure) Order 1977, Trade Advertisers must make it clear that they are selling goods in the course of business either by content, format, size or place of the advertisement or by including words such as 'trade', 'dealer', 'agent', 'wholesaler', '(T)' etc. in the advertisement.

3. The Publishers accept no liability whatsoever for any loss or damage however caused arising out of:

(a) Any error, inaccuracy or omission in the printing or publishing of any advertisement;

(b) Any failure to publish an advertisement on the day / date or day / dates specified by the advertiser; or

(c) Any delay in forwarding or omission to forward replies to box numbers to the Advertiser.

4. The Publishers will endeavour to publish advertisements on the day / date or day / dates specified by the Advertiser but insertion days / dates cannot be guaranteed.

5. Where shrinkage of advertisement occurs for whatever reason the advertisement will be charged to the nearest full centimetre. This will NOT apply to the full-page advertisements, which remain full pages even after shrinkage.

6. The Publishers reserve the right to reject an advertisement or to vary it in any way they deem fit, at any time before publication, whether or not the advertisement has already been accepted for publication.

7. Whilst every effort is made to minimise errors in advertisements, mistakes do sometimes occur. 15. All queries must be notified, preferably in writing to the accounts department of the publisher within 7 days of the invoice date.

16. All digital services are maintained in partnership with the publishers' hosting service providers. Every effort is made to ensure the continuity of these services, but some occasional technical downtime beyond the publishers control may occur. The publisher and its associated companies shall be under no liability if the production and distribution of web services is delayed or prevented by any cause beyond the control of the publisher.

HARRY: STARS TRIED TO DODGE ENGLAND DUTY

FORMER Tottenham Hotspur manager Harry Redknapp has courted controversy after claiming that players tried to avoid England duty during his time at the club.

Speaking during a BBC Radio 5 Live interview in the wake of England's elimination from the World Cup, Redknapp said: "They'd come to me ten days before the game and say, 'Gaffer get me out of the game. I don't want to play in it'."

QPR boss Redknapp, who was in charge at Spurs from October 2008 until June 2012, immediately came under fire from England skipper Steven Gerrard, who said he should name names.

And England coach Roy Hodgson said: "In the two years I've been here, I've seen a greater interest in playing for England, so Harry's comments come as a bit of a surprise to me. If you make comments like that, you have to name them."

While England are coming home, Spurs could still have as many as six representatives in the second stage of the World Cup.

Jan Vertonghen, Moussa Dembélé and Nacer Chadli were all unused substitutes as Belgium booked their place in the last 16 with a game to spare after a 1-0 win over Russia on Sunday.

They could be joined by Algeria, who lie second going into the final Group H game against Russia tomorrow night, while Belgium play South Korea.

Algeria, with Spurs youngster Nabil Bentaleb in their side, claimed an impressive 4-2 win over South Korea on Sunday.

Hugo Lloris was in goal as France made it two wins out of two on Friday with a 5-2 victory over Switzerland in Group E. A point against Ecuador in their final match tonight will be enough to ensure qualification.

Paulinho was part of the Brazil side that thrashed Cameroon 4-1 on Monday to set up a last-16 clash with south American rivals Chile on Saturday.

But Benoit Assou-Ekotto, who was on loan at QPR last season, has suffered a terrible World Cup. He was left out of the Cameroon squad for the Brazil defeat, having been caught on camera appearing to headbutt teammate Benjamin Moukandjo at the end of the 4-0 defeat by Croatia. Cameroon lost all three games in the tournament.

Meanwhile, Les Ferdinand and Chris Ramsey have departed from their roles as first-team coaches at Spurs.

The widely expected announcement came last Thursday and follows the appointment of former Southampton manager Mauricio Pochettino as Tottenham's new boss.

Ferdinand, 47, and Ramsey, 52, had been part of Tim Sherwood's coaching set-up, but were surplus to requirements after the Argentinian's coaching team moved over to join him from the Saints.

Former England striker Ferdinand joined the club as a forwards coach in 2008, and has since held a number of roles at White Hart Lane. Ramsey, who had been at the club for a decade, worked with the under-21 and development squads before stepping up to the role of first-team coach last December after Sherwood's appointment as manager.

Sherwood was sacked at the end of last season, despite guiding the club into the Europa League, and holding the highest win percentage of any Spurs manager during the Premier League era.

Pochettino, 42, resigned from Southampton last month to take over at Spurs, with assistant Jesus Perez, first-team coach Miguel D'Agostino and goalkeeping coach Toni Jimenez also leaving the south coast outfit to join him in north London.

Philipson century proves in vain for Hornsey

SKIPPER Michael Philipson's century proved in vain as Hornsey went down to a 99-run defeat at leaders Teddington in Division 1 of the Middlesex County Cricket League on Saturday.

Philipson led from the front with a knock of 111 as Hornsey chased 270 for victory. But with only one other player, James Fleming (20), making double figures, they fell well short of their target.

Earlier, Nii-Amaa Ollennu (5-68) and Oliver Yew (3-63) proved the pick of the visitors' bowling attack as Teddington were dismissed for 269.

After James Keightley (41) and Harry Bush (26) put on 64 for the opening wicket, Ollennu and Yew, along with two run-outs, helped reduce Teddington to 157-6.

But a partnership from Tom Ulyott (59) and Joe Barnett (52) for the seventh wicket got them back on track – and although the last four wickets fell for ten runs, Teddington's total of 269 proved more than enough for victory.

Philipson batted brilliantly in reply, but with Ben Ladd-Gibson (5-33) taking wickets regularly, Hornsey were all out for 170.

There was no joy either for basement side North Middlesex, who crashed to a 146-run defeat at home to Brondesbury.

After winning the toss and choosing to bat first, the visitors racked up an imposing 259-7, thanks in no part to a knock of 116 from Will Vanderspar.

Connor Nurse (3-53) was the pick of North Middlesex's bowling attack. Nurse (27) also impressed with the bat, sharing an opening stand of 49 with Michael Clements (30) and then moving the score along to 89-2 with Evan Flowers (23).

But the last eight wickets tumbled for just 24 runs as Brondesbury eased to a comfortable victory.

In Division 3, Highgate went down by 23 runs at home to Wembley. The visitors batted first in a strong opening partnership between Prinyat Patel (42) and Moazzam Rizvi (33) set them on the way to a total of 166.

William Russell, who also returned bowling figures of 2-3, hit 50 in reply. But he was one of Junayd Azar's six victims as Highgate were all out for 143.

North London claimed the thin end of a draw with South Hampstead. Chasing their visitors' target of 252-5, built around a third-wicket stand of 189 between debutant Sridharan Sriram (107) and James Williams (91 not out), they finished on 182-8 after 50 overs.

Milo Jennings (38) and Roshan Tennakoon (34) led the way with the bat.

On Saturday, there is a derby between Hornsey and North Middlesex, Highgate host Acton and North London travel to Kenton.

Skolars are hoping to silence Thunder

LONDON Skolars are back in rugby league action after a free weekend when they make the long trip to Gateshead Thunder in Kingstone Press Championship 1 on Sunday (2pm).
